

SKINCLOTHES & VEST'S MINSTRELS

"Well, Ah've got a job at last, Mistah Scabborough."

"Ah congratulate yo', Mistah Poin-dextah."

"Don't congratulate me, congratulate mah wife. Ah got de job for her."

"Hab yo' noticed dat de Turkish troops hab been decimated by de Bulgarians?"

"Where wuz dey decimated—on de arm or on de leg?"

"Tut, tut, you have my remark mistaken for inoculation with vaccine virus."

"Yaas, dat's what Ah mean—wax-bean wireless. Did it take?"

"Say, Ah've got a complaint to make. What's your dog always barkin' at me for?"

"Wuz mah dog barkin' at yo' again?"

"Yes. Does he take me for de man in de moon?"

"Naw. He takes yo' fob dat Board ob Health man who come to tell us to clean up our back yard."

"Huh, your dog ought to be used to dat man by diss time. Say, did yo' hear about de misfortune at mah house?"

"Noh, what wuz it?"

"Ah fell over a chair and broke a leg."

"Did you call a doctor?"

"No, Ah called a cabinetmaker. Dat wuz de same day mah wife by mistake sent her bustle to de laundry, and dey brought home her mangled form."

"Say, Ah understand dat yo' am a henpecked man."

"Yessah, mah wife don't allow me to carry a night key."

"Den how does yo' git in de house when you comes home late at night?"

"Ah crows lak a rooster and uses mah day key."

"Our eccentric quartet, consisting of Messrs. Henn, Hogg, Batts and Katz, will now oblige by rendering imitations of barnyard noises, assisted by the orchestra."

PERTINENT

An inebriated gentleman was going home one evening when he met a young man who was moving to a new home. The young man was very frugal and had decided to move his own things rather than pay a mover.

On this trip he had a large hall clock on his back. It was heavy, and he struggled until he heard the inebriated one call out:

"Shay, there you!"

Thinking the man was going to help him, he set down the clock and said:

"Well, sir?"

He was astonished to hear the other stammer:

"Shay, you, why don't you buy a watch?"
